

Authors

Paolo Angelini graduated in Biology at the University of Rome 1 (La Sapienza) and started working for the Italian Ministry of the Environment in 1991. He initially worked on issues such as waste management and air pollution, then for a long time on renewable sources of energy. In 2001 and 2002, P. Angelini acted as secretary of the Italian presidency of the Alpine Convention; since then, he has been national focal point for the Alpine Convention and vice head of the Italian delegation to the Permanent Committee. In these years, he acquired an extensive experience of the various organs of the Alpine Convention and a deep knowledge of the national and local authorities taking care of its implementation, including the Consulta Stato-Regioni dell'Arco Alpino.

Elena Chiocchetti holds a degree in English and German Translation Studies from the Scuola Superiore di Lingue Moderne per Interpreti e Traduttori (SSLMIT) in Trieste. Since 2003 she works as a researcher in legal terminology at the Institute for Specialised Communication and Multilingualism of the European Academy of Bolzano. She is vice-coordinator of the LexALP project.

Jon Marco Church graduated in Political Science at the University of Padua in 2004, then obtained a Master of Philosophy in International Relations at the University of Cambridge as well as a Master recherche at the University of Paris 1 (Panthéon-Sorbonne). In 2006, he moved from the study of trans-Andean relations to the analysis of trans-Alpine cooperation. He now is researcher in international relations at the 'Alpine Convention-IMA' Coordination Unit of the European Academy of Bolzano (EURAC), where he works on both the Alpine and the Carpathian Conventions. Jon Marco Church is currently completing a PhD on the international cooperation for the protection of the environment in the Alps at the Sorbonne.

Lisa Lanzoni is PhD candidate in Italian and European Constitutional Law at the Faculty of Law of the University of Verona. Since 2004 she cooperates in Interreg IIIB 'Alpine Space' Projects with the Department for Regional Affairs and Local Autonomies of the Italian Government. Her main fields of research concern the policies of territorial development and related instruments as well as the mechanisms concerning the suspension of fundamental rights in civil and common law countries.

Ginevra Peruginelli is research assistant at the Institute of Legal Theory and Techniques of the Italian National Research Council (ITTIG-CNR) since 2000. She has a degree in law from the University of Florence (Italy) and a MA/MSc Diploma in Information Science jointly awarded by the University of Northumbria, Newcastle, UK. From 2003 she has been admitted to Bar of the Court of Florence as a lawyer. At the moment she is a PhD student at the University College of London, Institute of Advanced Legal Studies (IALS) working on “Law and analysis of language in the context of European integration”. She carries out her research activities in various sectors, such as standards to represent data and metadata in the legal environment; law and legal language documentation; law and public information and computing policy.

Céline Randier works as legal expert for the LexALP project at the European Academy of Bolzano in Italy. She is also PhD Candidate at the Faculty of Law of Aix-en-Provence (France). Her main research fields are environmental law (Alpine, international and European legal systems) and the legal problematics related to mountains regions (especially the Alpine Space).

Leonhard Voltmer, Rechtsanwalt, Licencié en Droit (Paris II-Assas), Master in Legal Theory (Brussels), PhD in Linguistics (Munich), project co-ordinator of LexALP for the lead-partner EURAC. He is lecturing in the translation studies at Trento University and his research interests are in the large intersection between language and law.

Enrico Zamuner is Researcher in International Law as well as Professor of European Union Law and Private international Law at the University of Padua. He is a legal expert of the Department for Regional Affairs and Local Autonomies of the Italian Presidency of the Council of Ministers.